These are all practices that can be increased through integrating scientific inquiry into instruction. After years of instruction geared to having students perform well on a standardized test, educators must break the traditional instruction model of more teacher directed instruction and allow students to take a greater degree of ownership in their own learning. Analyze your own teaching style and learn how to shift your instruction towards a more student directed learning environment that still maintains content rigor in the classroom. Targeted Audience: 3-12 Science Teachers Session logistics: Presenter: Anne Petersen Location: RCC Glenns Campus, 12745 College Drive; Glenns VA; Room 118 *Pre-registration required *Bring your picture ID for check-in *You are welcome to bring your own drinks and snacks *Potential VA Teacher Licensure Renewal points= 4 *For more information, including presenter bio, go to Portaportal.com Guest Login REC2017 *If for any reason you are unable to attend a session you register for, you must contact the RCC Workforce Development Center at 804-333-6828 to cancel your reservation and allow someone on the waitlist to utilize your seat. *Building and room temperatures can fluctuate greatly during the summer and are not usually controlled on site.
